Fairleigh Dickinson University looks back with tremendous pride to the accomplishments achieved and looks ahead to even greater levels of excellence. Founded in 1942 by Dr. Peter Sammartino and his wife, Sylvia (Sally), Fairleigh Dickinson University has grown into the largest private university in New Jersey. More than 11,000 students from 37 states in the nation and 72 other countries are enrolled on the University's two campuses in northern New Jersey and its overseas campuses in Wroxtton, England and Vancouver, Canada.

Beginning as a two-year junior college in Rutherford, today the University offers more than 100 degree programs at the associate, baccalaureate, master's and doctoral levels. FDU strongly emphasizes an international component in its curriculum and provides its students with a global and multicultural perspective.

The University has consistently been an innovator, adapting to the changing educational demands of the students it serves. Responding to the need for higher education in northern New Jersey, the college expanded to a four-year curricula in 1948.

In 1954, the first graduate program – a master's degree in business administration – was offered, and Bergen Junior College in Teaneck was purchased as a second campus. In 1956, Fairleigh Dickinson attained university status. One year later, the beautiful 178-acre Vanderbilt-Twombly estate in Florham Park and Madison, New Jersey, was acquired to serve as another campus.

Fairleigh Dickinson University became the first American university to own a campus in England when it acquired Wroxtton College from Trinity College, Oxford University. Opened in 1965, Wroxtton College offers American students an array of graduate and undergraduate programs as well as an enriching cultural experience. Formerly a 13th-century abbey, Wroxtton College is now a beautifully restored and modernized Jacobean mansion.

In 1998, Fairleigh Dickinson University formed the New College of General and Continuing Studies, now known as the Anthony J. Petrocilli College of Continuing Studies, to address the special educational needs of nontraditional students, including adult learners.

Over the years Fairleigh Dickinson University has maintained its commitment to broadening global horizons and fostering greater international understanding. In 2000, the Board of Trustees adopted a newly focused mission for Fairleigh Dickinson University: to prepare students for world citizenship through global education.

Each of the University campuses has developed a unique character and vitality. The Metropolitan Campus, located in Teaneck, features a university atmosphere with an international perspective attracting nearly equal numbers of graduate and undergraduate students from throughout the United States and around the world. Fairleigh Dickinson's College at Florham in suburban Madison offers a classical undergraduate and graduate experience for the contemporary world in a small college setting.

With the depth and breadth of its faculty and programs, Fairleigh Dickinson University has positioned itself as a quality, comprehensive private university serving global citizens throughout the world.

Intercollegiate athletics have had a proud history of success at Fairleigh Dickinson University. The Metropolitan Campus is a Division I member of the NCAA, ECAC and Northeast Conference. Members of the NEC with Fairleigh Dickinson University are Central Connecticut State University, Long Island University, Monmouth University, Mount St. Mary's University, Quinnipiac University, Robert Morris University, Sacred Heart University, St. Francis College (NY), St. Francis University (PA) and Wagner College.

The campus now offers 19 varsity sports: baseball for men; fencing, bowling, softball, and volleyball for women; and basketball, cross country, golf, soccer, tennis, and indoor and outdoor track & field for both men and women.

Fairleigh Dickinson University has been one of the strongest intercollegiate athletics programs in the NEC, winning a record six NEC Commissioner's Cups (1988, 1989, 1990, 1992, 1993 and 1994) awarded for total athletic excellence. In the last 11 years, Fairleigh Dickinson University has had 15 Northeast Conference Scholar-Athlete selections in their respective sports for excellence on their playing field and in the classroom. Past Knights include: Alex Cole (1998 Men's Tennis); Michael Briganti (1998 Men's Golf); Melene Thomas (1999 Women's Outdoor Track & Field); George Hinchcliff (1999 Baseball); Patrick Leduc (1999 Men's Soccer); Karen Tiedemann (2001 Women's Basketball); Alex Sarria (2002 and 2004 Men's Tennis); Johnny David (2003 Men's Soccer); Nadav Gottesman (2004 Men's Soccer); Kyle Eddins (2008 Men's Tennis); Matt Maher (2008 and 2009 Baseball); and Eva Mayr (2008 and 2009 Women's Golf).

Department of Athletics Mission Statement

Recognizing that competitive athletics provide enriching and rewarding experiences for students, the Metropolitan Campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University is dedicated to maintaining Division I intercollegiate athletics as an integral part of the University's educational experience. Achieving academic excellence, however, is the central mission of the University and accordingly, Fairleigh Dickinson University encourages and emphasizes the importance of its student-athletes fulfilling their degree requirements.

Participation in Division I athletics provides equal opportunity for all students, men and women, to enhance and refine their physical skills at the highest competitive level and to improve personal attributes such as discipline, leadership, teamwork and sportsmanship. Additionally the athletics program serves as an important building block for the development of institutional loyalty and school spirit among students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends of the University.

A successful athletics program is dependent upon the cooperation and support of the Board of Trustees, the administration, faculty, staff, students, alumni and the public. Knowledgeable coaches and dedicated student-athletes who are committed to fostering integrity and excellence in a competitive atmosphere and devoted to implementing the philosophical stance of the governing bodies of intercollegiate athletics ensure the fulfillment of the University's mission on athletics.

Northeast Conference History

By providing opportunities for student-athletes to achieve their fullest potential both in athletic competition and in the classroom, the Northeast Conference (NEC) has charted a course of steady growth since its inception in 1981. Now in its 29th year of service, the NEC's new Strategic Plan has established a blueprint for the future as the Conference strives toward becoming an NCAA Division I leader for athletic success, academic achievement and integrity, sportsmanship, equity and diversity, community partnership and national engagement.

The NEC can trace its roots back to 1981, when the league was first established as the men's basketball-only ECAC-Metro Conference. A single-sport entity at its inception, even the league's most ardent supporters during its formative years could not have envisioned a transformation into a burgeoning 12-member, 22-sport conference. The remarkable success story of the conference began to unfold in 1985, when the league began sponsoring additional sports. Three years later, a change of name was in order and the Northeast Conference as we know it today was born. With membership and sport sponsorship continuing to grow over the next decade and beyond, the NEC now enjoys qualification or play-in access to 13 different NCAA Championships (baseball, men's and women's basketball, field hockey, men's and women's golf, women's lacrosse, men's and women's soccer, softball, men's and women's tennis and women's volleyball).

Though the NEC has featured various looks since its inception, charter members Fairleigh Dickinson, Long Island, Robert Morris, St. Francis (NY), Saint Francis (PA) and Wagner remain part of the current 12-school alignment. They are joined by Monmouth (admitted in 1985), Mount St. Mary's (1989), Central Connecticut State (1997), Quinnipiac (1998) and Sacred Heart (1999). NEC expansion continues with the addition of Bryant University in 2012 as the league's 12th member, which will give the league a six-state geographic footprint with access to such major media markets as New York City, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Hartford and Providence.

NEC member institutions now compete in 22 championship sports: baseball, men's and women's basketball, women's bowling, men's and women's cross country, field hockey, football, men's and women's golf, men's and women's indoor track and field, women's lacrosse, men's and women's outdoor track and field, men's and women's soccer, softball, women's swimming, men's and women's tennis, and women's volleyball. Men's lacrosse will begin competition this season and officially become the league's 23rd sport in 2010-11.

NEC Web site/Television

More widely-recognized than ever, the NEC is providing a number of new ways in which its growing fan base can follow the action.

The Conference began by fulfilling its strategic plan-driven new media initiatives in 2008-09 when it launched its own YouTube channel, created NEC On The Run podcast segments, and added NEC Flashbacks, a video on-demand archive, to its website. More recently, the league dove into the social media arena by launching a Facebook page and offering periodic news updates via Twitter.

To supplement one of the premier regional basketball television packages in the country, the conference also produces a football package and a preseason basketball show entitled NEC Countdown to Tipoff. Over the last five years, the Conference has televised nearly 150 events, as the league's coverage area expanded to over 50 million homes. Along with flagship station MSG Network, other regional television partners include MSG Plus, FSN-Pittsburgh, MASN, Fox College Sports, Cox Cable and the Connecticut Sports Network. In 2009, ESPN broadcast the men's basketball championship game for the 22nd straight year, while ESPNU carried the women's championship game, marking the second time in as many years that the women's contest reached a nationwide audience.

Further enhancing its multimedia efforts, the league will begin webstreaming a women's basketball game of the week in 2009-10, and raise the number of NEC championship webcasts from five to eight.

Academic Success

The Northeast Conference's commitment to academic excellence translated into national recognition for both individual student-athletes and the league's member institutions as a whole. NEC student-athletes graduated at an 83.8 percent rate, which is well above the national average of 78 percent according to NCAA Graduation Success Rate (GSR) data. Likewise, a total of 19 NEC teams garnered public recognition from the NCAA for their latest Academic Progress Rate (APR) scores. The league placed 42 representatives on ESPN The Magazine Academic All-District teams, five of whom went onto garner Academic All-America Honors. The first team honorees were Fairleigh Dickinson's Matt Maher (baseball), who was a third team recipient in 2008, and Wagner's Andrea Lazzari (softball). Saint Francis (PA)'s Eric Reifsteck (field hockey, second team), Monmouth's Ben Evenden (tennis, third team) and CCSU's Yan Klukowski (soccer, third team) were also honored for their academic and athletic performance. Evenden was a nominee for the prestigious Rhodes Scholar Award, while Wagner swimmer Alexandra

Tomlinson was awarded an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship. On a conference-wide level, more than 2,000 student-athletes qualified for the NEC Academic Honor Roll, nearly a 25 percent increase from the previous year. Saint Francis (PA) posted the highest GPA in the conference to claim the NEC Institutional Academic Award for the first time.

Athletic Success

Reinforcing its presence on a national stage, the Northeast Conference sent representatives to NCAA Championship events in 14 different team sports while NEC student-athletes individually qualified to compete for an NCAA title in men's outdoor track & field. In its longstanding effort to increase student-athlete opportunities, the Conference began sponsoring women's bowling as a championship sport and immediately grabbed national headlines for its successful inaugural season. Five of the league's seven bowling members occupied a spot in the final regular season edition of the NTCA Top-20 Poll with No. 2 Fairleigh Dickinson defeating top-seeded Nebraska to advance all the way to the semifinal round of the NCAA Women's Bowling Championship. Lock Haven found itself ranked amongst the nation's Top-25 as it marched toward its third consecutive NEC field hockey title.

In football, Albany became the first NEC team in nearly a decade to post back-to-back undefeated seasons within league play. In a game televised nationally on the YES Network, the Great Danes blanked Pioneer Football League champion Jacksonville, 28-0, in the third annual Gridiron Classic. Robert Morris men's basketball, which has won 50 games and two NEC regular season crowns in two years under head coach Mike Rice, captured its league-best sixth NEC title with a 48-46 last-second victory over Mount St. Mary's before a nationwide ESPN2 television audience and a school-record crowd at the Charles L. Sewall Center. On the heels of its perfect (18-0) run through the NEC women's basketball schedule and second NEC Tournament title in four years, Sacred Heart gave third-seeded Ohio State all it could handle in NCAA first round play.

Individually, 13 NEC student-athletes received All-America honors in their respective sports. Lock Haven's Blair Wynne, the only three-time Player of the Year in NEC field hockey history, was named to the Longstreth/NFHCA Division I All-America Second Team for the second consecutive season. NEC men's soccer has its most successful year since 1987 with three players acknowledged at year's end for their play. Quinnipiac's Graciano Brito earned his second straight NSCAA/adidas All-America honor, and was joined by FDU junior forward Samson Malijani on the third team. Brito and Monmouth's Angelo Amato were third team College Soccer News honorees. In addition to five football All-Americans, Monmouth's John Nalbone became the latest NEC player to reach the NFL when he was selected by the Miami Dolphins in the fifth round of the 2009 Draft. Former Wagner pitching great Andrew Bailey, a 2006 draft pick, broke into the big leagues in a big way during 2009. A non-roster Spring Training invitee, Bailey won a place in Oakland's bullpen before earning a spot in the MLB All-Star Game three months later. Hoping to someday follow Bailey's rise up the professional ranks, five of the NEC's finest were taken in the 2009 MLB Draft – Long Island's James Jones (Mariners), Monmouth's Ryan Buch (White Sox) and Brett Brach (Indians), Quinnipiac's Chris Gloor (Giants), and Wagner's Kyle Morrison (Nationals).

For the second straight year, Sacred Heart captured the Northeast Conference Commissioner's Cup, recently renamed in honor of NEC Commissioner Brenda Weare, who passed away in June. The Pioneers claimed the women's cup for the third year in a row while earning the men's cup for the first time ever to complete a clean sweep. The Pioneers established new Cup records for overall and women's points in the process.

In The Community

The NEC, its member institutions and student-athletes have made community involvement an important piece of its mission. In 2008-09, the NEC Student-Athlete Advisory Committee made its annual visit to the Cancer Recovery Foundation in Hershey, PA in February. That same month, conference members participated in "Think Pink" Day, a global effort organized by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association to assist in raising breast cancer awareness on the court, across campuses, in communities and beyond. The NEC made efficient use of the $75,000 it received from the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Grant Program last season. Expanding its base deeper into local communities, the Conference saw its women's basketball attendance increase by 20 percent from to establish a new league record.

Evolving and Expanding

The past half decade has seen the Northeast Conference take aim at upgrading the caliber of the league's championship sports and enhancing the opportunities and experiences for the more than 4,000 student-athletes that compete in the conference. Set to become the NEC's 12th full-time member, Bryant has begun competition within the conference as it moves through the NCAA reclassification process. The Conference has also secured automatic access to the NCAA Division I Football Championship playoffs beginning in 2010, making football the 14th team sport in which NEC student-athletes are guaranteed a chance to compete for the NCAA crown. New sport sponsorship in women's bowling and men's lacrosse (2010-11) will create further opportunities for NEC student-athletes. Set to embark on a number of branding, sportsmanship and community initiatives as part of the league's Strategic Plan, the NEC and its member institutions are committed to the future growth of the Conference.

Dr. J. Michael Adams

University President

Widely known for his support for the benefits of international experiences and cross-cultural understandings, Dr. J. Michael Adams joined Fairleigh Dickinson University as president on July 1, 1999. At Fairleigh Dickinson, he has inspired a new mission dedicated to preparing world citizens through global education. This mission responds to trends in business and society and builds on the University's strengths and traditions, including its extensive global programs and its location in the New York/New Jersey metropolitan area.

The largest, independent nonsectarian institution of higher education in New Jersey, Fairleigh Dickinson University serves more than 10,000 students. The University offers over 100 undergraduate, graduate and doctoral programs, with campuses in Teaneck, NJ; Madison, NJ; Wrocton, England; and Vancouver, Canada.

One of the most heralded initiatives spearheaded by President Adams is the University's groundbreaking distance-learning program in which all undergraduate students are required to take at least one online course per year. "Our goal is to use the Internet to bring the world to our students," Dr. Adams says. That goal is furthered by the establishment of Global Virtual Faculty, professionals from around the world who bring new perspectives to Fairleigh Dickinson University students via the Internet.

Prior to joining Fairleigh Dickinson, Dr. Adams served for 15 years as the academic dean of the Nesbitt College of Design Arts at Drexel University in Philadelphia. There, he increased enrollment sevenfold, created new vision and mission statements and led the college's development into one of the leading design institutions in the nation.

Dr. Adams came to Drexel from the State University of New York at Oswego, where he served as chair of the department of industrial technology and professor of education. From 1975 to 1976, he was a U.S. Congressional Fellow, working to develop legislation and serving as liaison to the House Committee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education.

Dr. Adams holds a B.S. from Illinois State University, Normal; an M.S. in education administration from the University of Illinois, Urbana; and a Ph.D. in education administration from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. In 1997, he attended Harvard University's Institute for Educational Management and in 1999, Harvard's Institute for New Presidents.

Dr. Adams is the author of eight books. His publications and research cover a wide variety of topics including print, publishing, communications and career development as well as topics specific to the field of higher education. He is the lead author of the world's best-selling textbook in print technology, Printing Technology, and is the founding publisher of Ties Magazine, designed for teachers and focused on problem-solving, innovation and images of change. Many corporations and associations seek Dr. Adams' expertise in strategic organizational development, and he has spoken to groups throughout the world.

His many honors include the State University of New York Chancellor's Award for Teaching Excellence. He also was named to the National Association of Printers and Lithographers' Soderstrom Society of Fellows, an award recognizing his research and publications in support of print and publishing. Dr. Adams also is an executive board member of the International Association of University Presidents (IAUP).

Dr. Joseph Kiernan

University Provost

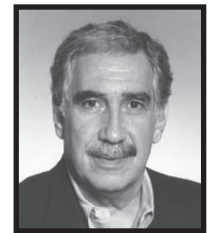

Dr. Joseph Kiernan was promoted to University Provost in 2008. He was first named Provost of the Metropolitan Campus in 2003, succeeding Richard Bronson, who served the Campus as Interim Provost since 2000.

Kiernan, who served as Associate Provost for the previous three years, is an associate professor of economics and finance in the Silberman College of Business. Since joining the University in 1979, Kiernan has been a leader in the Academic Senate, a member of the President's Cabinet and the University Strategic Planning Commission. He was the academic director for undergraduate programs and the coordinator for finance programs in the Silberman College of Business and chaired the President's Task Force on Institutional Governance.

A graduate of Fordham University, Dr. Kiernan earned his master's and doctoral degrees in economics emphasizing monetary, financial and international economics. He and his wife Barbara have three children. They currently reside in Glen Rock, NJ.

Richard Panicucci

NCAA Faculty Athletics Representative

Fairleigh Dickinson University's NCAA Faculty Athletics Representative for over a decade, Richard Panicucci is an integral part of the athletics department management.

Panicucci implemented an Academic Monitoring Program designed to track the academic progress of the student-athlete and provide support and feedback concerning the student-athlete in a timely fashion. This program received special recognition from the peer review team during the Athletics Department's NCAA certification process. He also presently serves as Assistant Provost for Campus life at the Metropolitan Campus. In the spring of 2004, Panicucci received the H. Rogers Muse Award for his special contributions and dedication to the athletics department. In the fall of 2004 he received Fairleigh Dickinson's prestigious Distinguished Faculty Award.

A Professor of Quantitative Analysis in Fairleigh Dickinson's Silberman College of Business Administration, Panicucci has been employed at the institution for 43 years. Over that span, he has served two terms as chair of the Accounting and Quantitative Analysis Department and nine years as Associate Dean of Silberman College of Business Administration.

An avid outdoorsman who enjoys camping, hiking and fishing, Panicucci operates his own personal winery and produces approximately 500 to 600 bottles of wine a year. With his wife Carol of 43 years, Panicucci has two children, son Richard and daughter Lisa, and four grandchildren.

David Langford Director of Athletics

Named Fairleigh Dickinson University's sixth full-time Director of Athletics on January 16, 2003, David A. Langford brings over 20 years of collegiate experience with him as a coach, administrator and educator. Langford succeeded Ann Gulino, who served as interim director from July 2002 until January 2003.

During his six years at the helm of the Knights' athletics programs, Langford has seen his teams' level of success grow both on the field of competition and in the classroom. Along with conference championships and NCAA Tournament appearances for the men's basketball, men's soccer men's tennis, women's bowling teams, and women's golf, the women's soccer team captured its first NEC regular season and ECAC titles in 2004. Fairleigh Dickinson's student-athletes represent the highest GPA for an on-campus group.

Since his arrival on the Metropolitan Campus, Langford has also made the improvement of facilities a top priority. Among the list of projects was the completion of a brand new softball field in April of 2004, installation of FieldTurf on the soccer field, refinishing the tennis court surface and installation of a new basketball floor in the Rothman Center. Langford also continues to help the department grow by creating more full-time positions and since the formation of Fairleigh Dickinson's fund-raising arm, Burgundy and Blue, annual giving has increased over 50 percent, helping to raise funds for the improvement of facilities and adding more athletic aid.

Langford took over after spending the previous 14 years as a member of the athletic administrative staff at former Northeast Conference (NEC) school, UMBC. He served as Associate Athletic Director from 1996 until his departure and as Assistant Athletic Director from 1988 to 1996. Langford was also named head coach of the UMBC women's cross country/track program in 1989 and held the position until retiring from coaching in 1998 to dedicate his time to student services.

During his tenure at UMBC, Langford served the athletic department with distinction in many capacities. He was responsible at different times for coordination and supervision of academic and student services for student-athletes, including the admissions process, financial aid, registration, tutoring and advisement of the Student Athlete Advisory Council. Langford coordinated the search process of all athletic department staff, coordinated several on-campus NEC championship events and coordinated research projects evaluating student-athlete progress, graduation and retention rates. He also assisted in development projects, budget issues, as well as management and development of staff programs and the design and construction of new athletic facilities, including a stadium complex and fieldhouse addition.

Upon his hiring in 1988, Langford immediately established UMBC's Academic Services program, which included the EXCELL (Exceeding Common Educational Limits & Liabilities) program, designed to teach specific behaviors that allow student-athletes to take full advantage of the classroom learning experience. The impact of the program saw immediate and long-term success. In the early 1990's, UMBC was ranked third in the nation by USA Today for the graduation ratio of student-athletes to the general student body. Following his retirement from coaching in 1998, UMBC produced 17 Academic All-Americans, including a school record six in 2001-02.

Prior to his tenure at UMBC, Langford served for two years (1986-1988) as a Learning Assistance Counselor at Loyola University of Chicago. There he designed and implemented academic services programs, evaluated recruits, developed tutoring programs and coordinated athletic academic support with the Dean's office and Office of the Provost. Langford also held the posts of Assistant Athletic Director for Staff Services (1985-86) and Academic Services (1981-85) for six years at Northwestern (IL) University.

The 1974 Millersville (PA) graduate has maintained his connection with the sport of track and field. He was a four-year letter winner as a sprinter at Millersville and continued his coaching career as the boys' head cross country and assistant track and field coach at Loyola (IL) Academy from 1986-88. During his tenure at UMBC, his 1993 women's track squad won the inaugural Big South Conference Outdoor Track Invitational and the 1994 team placed second in the league championships. His women's cross country squads won several Baltimore Metropolitan titles during his tenure. Currently, Langford is a member of the NCAA Track & Field Championships Committee.

Langford earned his bachelor's degree in comprehensive social studies from Millersville and two years later completed his master's of education in counselor education, also at Millersville. He is married to Karen Langford. The couple has a son, Christopher, age 27, and a daughter, Michelle, age 20.

Ann Gulino Senior Associate Director of Athletics/ Senior Women's Administrator

Ann Gulino has served as Fairleigh Dickinson University's Associate Director of Athletics since 1986, overseeing the day-to-day running of the athletics department as well as carrying out the responsibilities of compliance, team scheduling and travel. She served as the department's acting director for the 1997-98 athletic year, which saw the men's basketball and tennis teams crowned NEC champs. She served again as the acting director from July of 2002 through January 2003, during which time the University opened a new state-of-the-art Fitness Center and received approval to build a new softball field. In the fall of 2004, she received the prestigious Pillar of FDU Award, given to individuals who have made extraordinary contributions to the character and quality of the University, its community and culture.

As Senior Women's Administrator of the Fairleigh Dickinson University athletics department, which has had 13 student-athletes named NEC Scholar-Athletes in their respective sports in the last 11 years, Gulino coordinated and guided the department and University through the 1997 and 2004 NCAA certification processes. She is involved in all aspects of team and student-athlete compliance with the University, NEC and NCAA, serving as the University's liaison with the NCAA's Initial Eligibility Clearinghouse. Gulino, with Faculty Athletics Representative Richard Panicucci, assisted in the creation of Fairleigh Dickinson's Athletics Academic Monitoring Program.

Gulino serves as the liaison between the athletics department and Fairleigh Dickinson University's Financial Aid, Admissions, Residence Life, Enrollment Services and Food Services offices. She also represents the University at conference, local, state and national meetings. Gulino is presently the Knights' representative and former committee chairperson on the Northeast Conference Senior Women's Administrator Committee, which coordinates conference championships and recommends changes in conference rules.

She is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators and a past member of the NEC women's basketball, women's soccer, men's tennis and women's tennis committees. Gulino also served a four-year term on the NCAA Division I Academics/Eligibility/Compliance Cabinet and is a member of the NEC men's soccer and marketing committees.

Prior to joining Fairleigh Dickinson University in 1986, Gulino served as Assistant Softball Coach, Assistant Director of Athletics and Athletic Academic Advisor at Long Island University from 1981-86. She was responsible for administering and managing the day-to-day aspects of LIU's athletics department, as well as directing eligibility certification and managing home events. Gulino also assisted in the initiation and development of a varsity softball program which won the 1985 New York State Title and one league crown.

Gulino, a 1981 graduate of St. John's University, is married to Tom Thompson, Operations Specialist for Dreyfus Financial Services. They have a 17-year-old daughter, Kelly who is a senior at Kellenburg Memorial High School.

Department of Student-Athlete Support Services

The Department of Student-Athlete Support Services is a comprehensive system designed to advise, track and monitor the academic progress of student-athletes throughout the academic year. The program serves as a communication network providing feedback from the faculty to the department, coaches and student-athletes.

"Having been involved in athletics throughout my life, I know that student-athletes are faced with unique challenges and opportunities," said Quirk. "They must have the chance to achieve the complete college experience: academically, socially and athletically. This office provides support for these areas and more."

The Department of Student-Athlete Support Services' involvement in a student-athlete's career at Fairleigh Dickinson begins with advisement including choosing a major and signing up for prerequisites and university-required courses. Progress is closely monitored and there is a focus upon maintaining satisfactory grades and progress towards graduation.

Aside from advisement and monitoring the student-athlete's progress, the department provides life skills seminars in the area of academics, career development, athletics, personal development and service. Along with seminars, the department organizes a freshman student-athlete orientation, a National Student-Athlete Day celebration and "A Final Knight" tribute to the graduating seniors.

Each team is required by the department to develop a community service project. Past projects include: Spirit Day, Thanksgiving Food Drive, Toys for Tots, Clothing Drive, Food Bank of North Jersey, Habitat for Humanity and National Student-Athlete Day.

2008-09 SAAC Representatives

Sports Medicine

One of the key components to every student-athlete's college experience is the Sports Medicine Department. Under the direction of Head Athletic Trainer Cathy Liggett, the department's staff consists of three certified full-time athletic trainers and a strength and conditioning coach. The staff provides a comprehensive support program which includes prevention, care and rehabilitation of injuries for FDU's 19-sport athletics program.

Fairleigh Dickinson's student-athletes have access to a pair of athletic training rooms, both located near practice and game facilities. The primary training room is based in the Rothman Center, Fairleigh Dickinson's 2,000 seat indoor facility located on the Hackensack side of campus and features rehabilitation, therapeutic and cardiovascular equipment. The other satellite facility is housed at FDU Fieldhouse on the Teaneck side of campus, adjacent to the Knights' outdoor facilities and is also designed to meet all the needs of the student-athletes.

The Sports Medicine Department also receives strong support from some of the area's top medical professionals. Included among them are Fairleigh Dickinson's Health Service Department, local physicians of all specialties, Englewood Orthopedics, chiropractic services and physical therapists. The staff holds yearly seminars on various topics such as nutrition, current supplement trends, and alcohol awareness.

Student-Athlete Advisory Committee

Fairleigh Dickinson University's SAAC

The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) serves as a vehicle to facilitate, enhance and promote communication between the athletics administration and all student-athletes and also to facilitate communication among individual athletic teams. This committee consists of student-athlete representatives from each of the 19 intercollegiate teams.

Purpose

- a) encourage unity, common purpose and camaraderie between teams and among all student-athletes in the Division I athletics program
- b) enhance and foster communication between teams and among student-athletes
- c) provide the student-athlete population with an opportunity to more effectively communicate with the athletics administration and provide suggestions on programs designed to meet their needs
- d) serve as a vehicle through which the athletics administration may discuss with student-athletes issues regarding the management, operation and rules that govern the athletics department and intercollegiate teams
- e) actively encourage more involvement of the student-athletes in the campus and community

Mission Statement

The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) is a communication vehicle by which Fairleigh Dickinson University student-athletes and the athletics administration discuss the student-athlete experience, while encouraging the involvement of student-athletes in the unification of the campus community along with the surrounding communities.

Burgundy & Blue

In June of 2004, Burgundy and Blue, the official booster organization of Fairleigh Dickinson University Division I Athletics, was chartered. Burgundy and Blue is an umbrella organization unifying each of the Knights' 21 individual sport booster clubs or affiliate groups.

The general purpose of Burgundy and Blue is to assist the Department of Athletics and its programs in raising money to defray the rising cost of competition at the NCAA Division I level. Funds generated are used for scholarships, purchasing of equipment and facility enhancements.

Any person who makes a contribution to Fairleigh Dickinson and designates such contribution to the Burgundy and Blue or to any sports organization recognized by FDU shall become a member of the Burgundy and Blue for the fiscal year during which such contribution is made.

Renee Montana

Head Coach - Fourth Season

Last fall, Renee Montana led the Fairleigh Dickinson University women's soccer program to the Northeast Conference Tournament – the Knights' first berth since 2004 – and her first during her tenure at the Metropolitan Campus.

A win in the regular-season finale clinched the team's NEC Tournament No. 4 seed, and also marked the 100th victory of Montana's 11-year, collegiate head coaching career.

Montana was named head coach in August 2006, becoming the second coach since the program's inception in 2000. The Long Island, NY native arrived at the Metropolitan campus via the College of Florham, FDU's Division III program.

In 2007, Fairleigh Dickinson finished on fire. Montana's squad landed in a three-way tie for third place in the Northeast Conference, but missed the postseason due to a thorough tie-breaker. After winning four of its final six contests, the Knights ultimately posted a 5-4 record versus league foes.

In her first season at the helm, FDU's young squad gained valuable field time, with 16 players starting various games. The team finished the season 4-12-1 overall and 3-6 in the NEC. More importantly, they secured a winning record at home for a third-consecutive season, going 4-3-1 in Teaneck.

In 2005, Montana guided the Division III Devils to a 13-5-1 overall record, including a 5-2 record in the Middle Atlantic Conference. The campaign ended in a fourth-consecutive conference playoff berth for the Devils, in addition to an East Coast Athletic Conference Metro Championship. At Florham, she coached seven players in 2005 to Mid-Atlantic All-Conference selection, compiling an 80-63-8 career record through eight seasons. The veteran coach was twice named Middle Atlantic Conference Coach of the Year (2000 & 2004).

Montana was a standout forward at Sachem High School – a nationally-ranked program – earning a collegiate roster spot at Lenoir-Rhyne University in Hickory, NC. In her prep playing days, she led Sachem to two New York State Championship games and four-straight Regional final appearances. During Montana's collegiate career, the attacker helped the Bears to four-consecutive South Atlantic Conference Championship games. A two-year member of the Dean's List, she graduated in 1995, earning a bachelor's degree in Physical Education and achieving All-Conference status twice.

Montana taught special education in North Carolina's Catawba County and health education in Burke County for two years. Meanwhile, she coached multiple teams in the Catawba County Soccer Club, as well as Burke County Select squads.

Following her move to the Garden State in 1997, Montana spent two seasons as a volunteer assistant coach at Randolph High School and as a Professional Trainer with Soccer Excellence. She was also the Chairman of the Mid-Atlantic Conference for women's soccer over three years.

Fairleigh Dickinson's third-year coach resides in Hillsborough, NJ and is working towards a Master of Arts degree in Administrative Science.

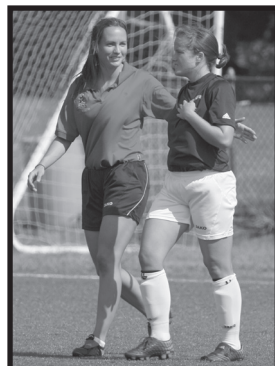

Marguerite Ferrell

Assistant Coach - Fourth Season

Marguerite Ferrell was named assistant coach of the Fairleigh Dickinson University women's soccer team in August 2006. The fourth-year assistant coach's responsibilities include recruiting, training, and overall development of the program.

Ferrell was a four-year letter winner for the Knights. As a freshman, she was the only first-year player to start all 18 games, picking up Brine Northeast Conference Rookie of the Week honors along the way. In her senior season, she shifted up front after playing three seasons on the back line and the midfield, en route to another Brine NEC Player of the Week distinction. In her senior season, she paced the squad with a team-best eight goals (17 points), receiving First Team All-Conference acclaim.

Ferrell's 45 points and 19 goals rank second all-time, while she remains in the top 10 of six offensive categories. A two-goal performance versus Quinnipiac in 2005 landed her in a tie for most goals in a game, also propelling her into a tie for most game-winning goals in a career with five.

At Rahway High School, Ferrell garnered All-State and All-County honors three times. She also earned Mountain Valley Conference First Team distinction as a senior.

Ferrell graduated with a bachelor's degree in Political Science and is pursuing her master's. She resides in Lodi, NJ.

Catherine Gordon

Assistant Coach - Fourth Season

Catherine Gordon was named an assistant coach to the Fairleigh Dickinson University women's soccer team in August 2006. She works primarily with the goalkeepers and is responsible for various scouting and recruiting activities.

As a former United Soccer League W-League goalkeeper for the New Jersey Wildcats, Gordon boasts over 25 years experience between the pipes. A graduate of Purdue University, she was a four-year letter winner in four varsity sports during high school. She played basketball for Fort Lewis College (CO) and concluded her collegiate career playing soccer for the Boilermakers during her senior year.

The fourth-year coach holds a United States Soccer Federation "C" License and serves as a goalkeeper evaluator for Olympic Development Program tryouts. She has recently earned her Advanced National Goalkeeper Diploma, as well as becoming a Certified Trainer for the Positive Coaching Alliance.

Gordon remains the founder and director of Net Edge Training, LLC. Since 1999, Net Edge Training has specialized in goalkeeping training for area teams and youth players of all ages. She is a member of the US Soccer Foundation, National Soccer Coaches Association of America, and The Women's Sports Foundation.

2009 Season Outlook

A year after qualifying for the Northeast Conference Tournament for the first time under the guidance of Head Coach Renee Montana, the Fairleigh Dickinson University women's soccer team enters the 2009 season seeking postseason redemption. This fall's campaign provides the Knights new opportunities and an array of avenues to make program history.

"We expect to make it to the NEC Tournament again," Montana said. "I think our 2008 season was filled with lessons learned. We're hoping to apply those experiences and improve in 2009."

Merely clinching back-to-back berths in the postseason would set a new precedent for FDU women's soccer. However, a win in the four-team competition would not only increase the Knights' profile, but also successfully avenge last season's semifinal setback.

"The team expects more and wants to go farther; we will not be complacent because making the postseason isn't enough," Montana said. "We can't sit back and believe what some teams think – that 2008 was a fluke. It's time to move forward."

One of three keys for the 2009 Knights remains the ability to maintain a consistent level of performance throughout the season – specifically between Friday and Sunday contests during the league slate. The ability to cash in on scoring opportunities and close out opponents will also directly correlate to FDU's win total. With a veteran group, all three elements are undoubtedly feasible.

"We have a tightly knit group who has played together," Montana said. "More importantly, they've shown the ability to play well together, so that's to our advantage."

With championship-caliber pieces in tact, reaching the aforementioned next level is contingent upon well-rounded efficiency in: goalkeeping, the defense, midfield, and attack. Fortunately, the roster boasts nine upperclassmen – six of which possess a minimum of two years starting experience. And that group has grown accustomed to training, practicing, and competing in Montana's system.

"Consistency is important," Montana said. "We need to find our peak time during conference play, then its time to push and maintain a high level of focus and execution. The team cannot dip below that standard."

An undeterred echelon of play will be a byproduct of leadership, and Fairleigh Dickinson will feature a widespread foundation of that building block. For the second-straight season, seniors Jennifer Arceneaux and Katie Hilder hold the responsibility of co-captains. Yet, more individuals will factor into the composition of the Knights' on-field direction.

"In addition to Jen and Katie, I expect certain players to lead by example, such as [junior midfielder] Lisa [Marie Curti] and [forward] Rashidah [Sherman]," Montana said. "Then I anticipate another group, [forward] Bailey [Popwicz] and [midfielder] Sierra [Griffiths], to gain confidence in their leadership and step up vocally."

While Montana's certain about her veteran mainstays, the preseason affords additional time for a group of eight sophomores to flourish. Six of those players started at least four contests in 2008.

"The spring season was encouraging," Montana said. "We witnessed the transition of that class and watched them grow and improve. Their progression is vital in maintaining success."

Seniors Emma Howes, Megan MacKellar, and Christine Niven will also be depended on to step up their roles in 2009. Howes and Niven, both midfielders, were two of seven student-athletes to appear in every contest a season ago. Meanwhile, MacKellar posted one shutout through six starts in net.

"Jen and Chrissy were in central positions last year and effectively played off each other's strengths & weaknesses," Montana said. "Katie coming off injury is a huge asset, and those three allow for shuffling and new combinations. Emma brings toughness and, if earned, the goalkeeper position is Megan's job to lose and hold on to."

Sophomore Stephanie Tanzi gained experience in goal as a rookie and freshman Victoria Berg arrives to the Metropolitan Campus with an astounding career stat line (school leader in wins, shutouts, fewest goals allowed, and lowest goals against average).

"Goalkeeper is always a position for competition, because they can never be too comfortable back there," Montana said. "Victoria supplies another solid goalkeeper who we expect to work hard to earn time, and to certainly put a challenge to our returnees."

Five newcomers bring depth to an already stalwart defense. Sophomores Amy Flanagan and Alexis Pardo return; Flanagan made 16 starts last year and Pardo saw action in 11 games. Griffiths, who logged 920 minutes through 18 games in 2008, adds another element to the defense and may also see time as a mid.

"We have great expectations for Amy, who has come a long way, and Sierra should step into a more definitive role," Montana said. "Lisa stabilizes things with a wealth of experience and a great skill set."

"I'm very confident in our back line," Montana said. "[Sophomore] Loren Rich and [red-shirt freshman] Alexa Woolley will compete for a spot and playing time, thus providing pressure on our incumbent starters. Our defense will enjoy a healthy competition for minutes all season long."

Freshmen Leslie Gauntlett and Sara Shaughnessy add defensive options for Montana. Rich, a transfer from Saint Peter's College, is accompanied by junior Maureen O'Connell, who brings two years of college experience from the County College of Morris; while Woolley red-shirted at Stony Brook University last season.

"Loren is a very smart defender who can be used in the midfield as well," Montana said. "I'm impressed with her ability to tactically know how to limit the damage a forward line can do."

"Alexa is a strong player with an excellent defensive mind and is not afraid of contact," Montana said. "We'll look to her to shut down an opponent's best player."

"Leslie is a hard-working kid that really wants to come into this level and make a difference with her commitment," said Montana.

"Sara's an all-around, consistent player, with above average speed," Montana said. "With composure way beyond her years, she's also strong and can strip a striker with ball at her feet."

"Maureen is a good defender with solid technical skill," Montana said. "She can really shut players down in 1-on-1 situations."

Junior Leah Halka, sophomore Julie Woolridge, freshmen Cindy Calderon, and Francesca Yaccarine – along with dual threats Griffiths, Rich, and Shaughnessy – will all compete for time in the midfield with Fairleigh Dickinson's reliable, aforementioned trio of seniors. Halka and Woolridge combined to make 15 starts a season prior.

"We have such a strong defensive line and an overload in the midfield," Montana said. "Our starting alignment will be a 4-4-2, with the flexibility to adjust our attack to a 4-3-3 and implement an emphasis on a defensive holding midfielder. But, it all depends on individual game day situations."

"Cindy brings a high level of technical skill, playing at a high level," Montana said. "She will be a versatile addition."

"Francesca is one of those hard-nosed, do whatever it takes, players," Montana said. "She's a central mid who is an excellent distributor of the ball."

The offense is anchored by Sherman, who erupted last year for eight goals (17 points) and finished tied for second in an FDU single-season best effort. Arceneaux adds a spark after dishing out six assists to pace the team, amidst moving into fifth-place all-time with three game-winners (popping two in 2008).

"Despite creating chances, a challenge for us is scoring goals," Montana said. "Talented teams rise to the occasion and capitalize – they find some way to put a point on the board and close out games."

Sherman spent the spring season with line mate, Popowicz, and developed an explosive connection. Hilder may push up top, with sophomore Stephanie Austin providing a boost off the bench. Montana noted that Woolridge, Halka, and Niven all have the potential to shift ahead permanently if the team's configuration switches to three forwards.

With a roster of 23, the Knights' coaching staff remains energized for every day. Progress and cohesion is substantial every time FDU hits the turf.

"Practices are easier from a tactical standpoint with almost two full teams," Montana said. "Having full-sided scrimmages during training is really important to fixing or adjusting team and player-specific styles of play."

By season's end, Fairleigh Dickinson will go up against 10 programs in league competition and four Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference teams. Two from the Patriot League are on tap, with one match versus the America East and the Colonial Athletic Association.

The Knights will also play their first night game at University Field in program history (Quinnipiac University on Oct. 9 - 7:00 pm). In total, eight home tilts are slated. FDU has posted a winning record at home in four of its last five seasons.

"I hope that the home field trend continues; we need to defend our home turf and play with pride," Montana said. "Our schedule is tough, because every game poses a new challenge, but that should prepare us for conference play."

"It should be an exciting year with interesting dynamics. We have proven veterans, freshmen, and four transfers. It's unique to have such a combination of youth exuberance – with the determination to come in and be an impact player – and the talent we have already."

In 2009, the question is not whether Fairleigh Dickinson will make the leap towards becoming an elite NEC team. The question is which of the above classifications of student-athletes makes the largest impact in each of the Knights' 18 matches. If there's one concrete notion for fans, it's that FDU is brimming with experience, depth, and promise.

2008 Season Recap

The 2008 Fairleigh Dickinson University women's soccer season represented a season of swings for the Knights. Ultimately, Head Coach Renee Montana's squad distinctly defied preseason predictions (eighth place), finishing fourth in the Northeast Conference while making their first postseason appearance since 2004.

FDU opened their season with a 1-1 record losing its opener at the University of Hartford, but matching the best offensive showing on the road in program history, with a 5-0 win over Saint Peter's College. With four goals in the first half, the Knights proved they were ready for the season ahead.

The Knights recorded their second-straight 5-0 win defeating Carleton University during their home opener (action deemed an exhibition). The winning streak continued when Rashidah Sherman netted the program's first-ever hat trick, en route to a 3-1 victory over previously unbeaten Drexel University of the Colonial Athletic Association. The freshman received NEC Player of the Week, NEC Rookie of the Week, and ECAC Offensive Player of the Week accolades for her production.

On September 7th, Fairleigh Dickinson faced Rider University for the first time since 2000. Although FDU out-shot the Broncos, 22-8, Montana's team fell, 2-0. The Knights traveled to Albuquerque, NM for the Nike Invitational and were saddled with two losses – one of which was a late-game, 1-0 loss to the University of Nevada – Las Vegas. In that outing, Megan MacKellar shined between the pipes for FDU, making a season-high six saves.

A five-game losing streak ensued, but was eventually snapped after a 2-0 victory over Lafayette College.

The Knights began October with a 1-0 win over Mount St. Mary's University, ignited by a game-winning goal from Julie Woolridge – the first of her career. But two days later, Fairleigh Dickinson was upended in overtime, 3-2, by the defending NEC champions, Monmouth University. The next weekend, the squad bounced back to turn in a 3-0 win over Wagner College at University Field.

The Knights went 1-3 over the next two weeks but soon surged to end the year on a strong note. In a race for a postseason berth, FDU won their last two regular season games.

Montana's team defeated Saint Francis University (PA), 1-0, in a must-win situation. Then on Alumni and Senior Day, the Knights knocked off Robert Morris University, 3-1. The battle with RMU was led by two departing student-athletes, Lora Lehr and Emma Yamada, who each registered a goal in the first half. Lehr was named the NEC Player of the Week after she recorded six points in the final weekend of the regular season. The decision over the Colonials launched the Knights to a 5-4 record in the conference and represented Montana's 100th career victory.

The fourth-seeded Knights fought hard against top-seeded Long Island University in the NEC Tournament semifinals. Although the Knights came out on the losing end, the squad achieved more than any other FDU women's soccer team in the four previous campaigns.

Fairleigh Dickinson had two players, Amanda Wheeler and Sherman, named First Team All-NEC. Wheeler was also named the NEC Defensive Player of the Year and to the All-NEC Tournament team. Goalkeeper Rachel Derrico joined Wheeler, attaining All-NEC Tournament honors.

Numerous records were broken during the Knights' breakthrough 2008 season. Wheeler, who notched 11 career assists (second place all-time), registered four on the year. Sherman paced Fairleigh Dickinson with 17 points. Her eight goals finished tied for second for an FDU single-season best effort, alongside current Assistant Coach Marguerite Ferrell (05).

Jennifer Arceneaux dished out six assists to pace the team and rank fourth in the NEC. She stands tied for fourth all-time with eight career assists, coupled with her two game-winners versus Wagner and Sacred Heart University. Her three career game-winners are tied for fifth all-time.

In addition to FDU's on-field achievements – which included Montana's first-ever Division I playoff berth and the Knight's third postseason appearance in the school's history – the squad had a banner year in the classroom. With 17 NEC Academic Honor Roll selections, the women's soccer team tallied the most honorees of any Fairleigh Dickinson athletic program.
